

This is How the Money Goes Round

Some provide secret Government funds to private persons and organizations, the CIA gave its money directly to these particular foundations. They are the names in the first box of the chart. Some were largely occupied with other work.

Some were mainly CIA conduits. These foundations, in turn, gave the money to other private organizations. They are the names in the shaded band. One step away from the source of the money, they could rarely be identified as part of the CIA pipeline. They passed the secret funds along to specific CIA-approved groups, organizations, study projects. Those are named in the last set of circles. Their job was to parcel out the money to individuals.
